

The International Coastal Cleanup 2016 in Vanuatu

The ICC is a global effort by volunteers cleaning up the rubbish on the world's beaches. It is not the solution to the problem of marine pollution, but we collect the data to show that there is a real problem. Highlighting this issue will hopefully lead to people understanding of how much litter gets into our seas and causes damage. We hope once people see this they will change their behaviour and not throw litter on the ground or onto the street.
